Profile

I am a New York metropolitan-based artist and a graduate of Syracuse University, where I earned a double major in Art History and Fine Art, with a minor in Biology. My academic foundation has provided a rigorous grounding in classical technique, historical context, and material mastery — all of which continue to inform and challenge my practice today.

My work lives at the intersection of two seemingly opposing forces: the structure and precision of classical art traditions, and the raw, expressive energy of contemporary graffiti and urban visual language. I am interested in how these worlds collide — how a Renaissance-inspired portrait might coexist with the urgency of a spray-painted tag, or how the formal beauty of anatomical drawing might rupture into gestural mark-making born from the street.

Graffiti introduced me to a language of immediacy and rebellion — an unfiltered form of visual communication. In contrast, my academic training taught me control, reverence, and the slow process of refinement. My practice now seeks a balance between these poles, where the discipline of the old masters meets the improvisational spirit of the street. As I step beyond the confines of institutional critique and classroom instruction, I am focused on building a body of work that feels hybrid and honest — rooted in history but born from the present. I explore themes of identity, place, and cultural layering, using my art to fuse tradition with disruption, refinement with instinct.

I have been represented by several galleries in the metropolitan area. Please refer to my website or Instagram page to view my available works and those that have been sold.

“Won For All”

■ “Won For ALL Is not just an art show! It is a celebration of New York City Street culture, diversity, and ART... It’s the bringing together of some of the best talents that New York has to offer under one roof to cheer for, because we absolutely WON FOR ALL! These artists have been around for over 3 decades and have always remained true to their craft and love for New York. What absolutely makes this show special, is that throughout the pandemic these artists were all here for me during my hardest times. When motivation and inspiration were nowhere to be found, I had MY FRIENDS to fill the void! Pop International Galleries, for the last 10+ years, has been my home; and Jeff, Nanette, and Team Pop have truly become family. It’s amazing how much Pop has helped me grow as an artist and friend. Giving me the opportunity to curate, showcase, and bring on new talent is something I absolutely love doing. Thank you to all these artists and The POP Gallery, because without you, this exhibition would not be possible!”

In Boss’ style, which borders between classical and street technique, work is juxtaposed between rushed and reckless street writing with laborious and intricate pointillism.”

On Canal (Wall Play Network) - Midtown, NYC

Featured Artist & Curator | 10/17/18 to 12/20/18

"High Contrast"

- 'Confronting the infamy of graffiti in popular culture in relation to other forms of canonical art, contemporary artist Christian Boss uses a self-developed style he refers to as "faux stenciling," combining the laborious process of using a pointillist technique to create realistic-like portraits with the imitative tags of reckless graffiti. Christian seeks to push the boundaries of what can be accomplished when two traditionally disparate avenues of art come together by filling every square inch of the canvas with thousands of dots, pushing the level of detail to photo realistic fidelity before adding a variety of pigment with various techniques commonly used by street artists. An emerging artist with a collegiate career focused on the study and practice of art, Christian currently resides and exhibits his work throughout the New York Metropolitan area."

- Christian Boss is currently collected internationally and domestically throughout the U.S.
